

I live with Jim, my partner of 23 years, and our Springer Spaniel, Angel. I have one daughter, Allison, who is a social worker and lives with her family in Massachusetts. My three granddaughters are: Brianna, a junior at the University of Alabama, Amanda, a freshman at Smith College, and Sammie, a high school senior.

During my career,, I taught middle school reading for 19 years and was a middle school principal for 15 years. Concurrently, I was an adjunct professor at Dowling College teaching Reading in the Content Areas and Student Teaching Seminar. After retirement, I was the Project Manager for Literacy Collaborative through BOCES.

Presently I teach water aerobics at the YMCA, supervise four soup kitchens, cook and serve at one once a week, volunteer at Mary Immaculate thrift shop and am a member of the Bellport Fire Department's Ladies Auxiliary. Finally, I am a Pilot. I serve and dedicate my energies to this extraordinary organization.
